Jam in the Park announces the 2011 Concert Series.

For the 5th year, Jam in the Park will bring together Spartanburg to support local music. Four concerts have been planned to take place in Duncan Park on Sunday afternoons from 1-7pm. All concerts are free to the public, showcase local musicians and support community causes. The public is encouraged to bring the whole family, picnics, chairs, shade tents and donations. www.Jaminthepark.com for details and line up of bands.

April 17--Earth Day Jam in the Park

Join the celebration. It will not only be a day filled with music, but a chance to learn how to get involved locally to make a difference for the environment. Local, environmentally-focused non-profits will set up from 2-5pm with information stations during this concert. Learn what they do and how to get involved.

This event is registered with the national Earth Day Network, A Billion Acts of Green.

Non-profits that wish to participate should contact Tammy Stokes, tdreamweaver@hotmail.com.

Other Earth Day events in the area include the Household Hazardous Waste Collection Day and Discover Your Watershed. More info: <http://act.earthday.org/events/search/distance/29302>

May 22--Show Up for Spartanburg Jam in the Park

Join Citizen Spartanburg and your fellow citizens as we celebrate what we love about our community. You'll have a chance to take the mic, raise a cheer and tell the world what you love about Spartanburg. www.citizenspartanburg.org for more info.

September 18--Back to School Jam in the Park

Bring some extra school supplies to donate to local non-profits during this concert.

October 23--Thanks for Giving Jam in the Park

Jam in the Park is run by volunteers and all organizers and musicians donate their time. We would like to thank the City of Spartanburg for the logistical support in making this kid/dog/family/community friendly festival possible. Donations and sponsorships are greatly appreciated as they help offset costs. Contact Erica Brown, beaufort1978@yahoo.com, 864-266-3033, to learn how you can help.
